

Subaru Makes Face Shields for Healthcare Workers in Japan

Subaru extends its deepest condolences to those who have lost family and friends to COVID-19 and wishes a speedy recovery for all those infected with the virus. We also express our heartfelt gratitude and respect for people on the front lines around the world including national and local government officials, healthcare professionals, and all other essential workers who work tirelessly in the midst of this global pandemic.

In corporation with our suppliers, the Subaru Group has started production of medical face shields for healthcare workers in Japan. By the end of April, Subaru has donated approximately 400 shields to medical institutions near its Gunma Manufacturing Plant.

Subaru plans to produce additional 7,000 units by the end of May for donation to medical institutions and organizations in communities where Subaru has its facilities.

The Subaru Group will continue its efforts in providing aid to healthcare workers and addressing other needs to support our communities in the global fight against COVID-19.
